“ I remember so many great childhood things. We created a world unto ourselves. He loved cars even when he was very young. When I started elementary school, I told him they had a secret driving school in the basement. He was so excited to start school, so he might have been a bit disappointed when he got there and looked in the basement.

We played house all the time. One day I told him I was leaving home and he said "Can I go with you?" I told him no, that I didn't want to be married anymore. He still wanted to go with me. I miss him so much. Jane, his sister
