“ My heart is aching I just learned of your passing today. .. I don't know where to begin... how do you sum up a friendship of more than 20 yrs? You were more than a dear friend you were family. So much laughter, tears, words of wisdom, prayers shared over the years. This world truly lost a kindred soul in your passing. We love you and will see you again on Heaven's shore ”

The day before Easter, Jennifer was setting the table for me when I caught her with my camera dancing around the table, singing a song and wiggling her behind! That 4 seconds of video is so precious to us!

“ .Jmo was an amazing trainer. I would not be where I am today if it was not for her. She told me If wanted this job bad enough she would make it happen. I remember thinking I am gonna give you ride for your money cause I am pretty slow. She did and made an empowered me. She brought me a light bulb and told me when I feel like I am slow and I am struggling keep trying the light bulb will come on I still have that light bulb. 9 years later and look at when struggling. One day jmo was talking to several people and told them they should talk to me I am so funny. She wished she would see me talk more. We laughed when she turned around and saw me standing there. When I feel like i just need to be quiet or people will know how slow I am I think back to that today, and talk. Thank you Jmo for touching me life in positive way.

“ Jennifer was a very special person. You could always see her light shining through and that wonderful smile. I enjoyed our conversations. The memory of Jennifer that stands out the most for me, one day I was walking from the break room back into the call center at SourceGas (BHE). Jennifer walked by, we said hi, and then it dawned on me she was... Wearing a dress. Nearly blew my mind. She looked awesome but it sure was not what I was used to seeing. Jennifer you will be missed greatly and I will always remember our last conversation. I love you. To your family, I am truly sorry for your loss. You are all in my prayers.

“ I don't even know where to begin... I'm so sad I don't even want to continue this work day. You were an amazing trainer & person all around. So much that I knew your favorite drink. Seeing you at the new office you still treated me with grace & told everyone I was your kid. Getting the news this morning broke and hurt my heart. May you Rest In Peace JMO🕊️ Until we see you again. #tb

“ I remember watching her pull up on her bike at Source Gas/Black Hills. I thought "that's a woman who is very comfortable in the skin she's in". She was the greatest trainer. We all loved her. She had this aura about her that made her easy to relate to and the training sunk in. That smile said wonders and also immediately let you know, 'it's alright'. Her passing is truly a loss. My deepest condolences to the family.

“ JMo you always had a smile to share, a story to tell a giggle to give. My most favorite memory... and every time I hear Luke Bryan Rain Is A Good Thing... i see you ... doing “The Sprinkler” haha and I would wonder ... what’s JMo doing these days and it would make me giggle and smile. You are gone to soon...you will be missed. Every time I hear that song 🎵 or feel a raindrop.... I will smile and giggle .. knowing your up there teaching the sprinkler to the Angels. Love you Leslie Tabor

“ I can't choose a memory of Jen, because I have a lifetime of them.
Cousins are some of your first friends, but only a lucky group of us have them become our best friends. The world is a little darker, and heaven is definitely brighter. You will always be in my heart.
