“ Today I found out Miss Jessie went to be with the Lord. I reflected on whom this lady and her fine husband, Ivan have meant to me. They trusted me and treated me like family. They gave me work, stories and laughter. When I lost my daughter 5 years ago Ivan was there to help bear my sorrow. That is who they are. Jessie smiled always at the door and invited me in. No one in b.c. Hollywood had the beauty of Miss Jessie. She had true beauty, the beauty of a sweet soul and caring spirit. What made it more marvelous is she did not know it. Her husband Ivan knew what a treasure he had and loved her sweetly and daily, dreading the day his angel took flight. She truly was an angel. Her son, Darrell has been blessed to have been raised by such a woman, as has anyone who has known her. The Bible says, the angels rejoice when a saint comes home. They are surely doing so now as her crown is given. May God bless the Harp family and may we all try to be like Miss Jessie and Ivan in this life. I thank God I met her and will rejoice the day I see her again. Thank you Jessie Harp for letting me be a small part of your life. Your friend, Rex DeLaMatter.
